"THE PAWARFUL GARDEN" -By Ann Suman Sirur

One fine morning, when I was scratching my head over how to find a landscape designer who would fulfil my aesthetic aspirations without straining my purse too much, I walked a cheerful smiling man with our building contractor. And.... my long-cherished dream of having a beautiful garden took on the shape of a "Powerful" one, when I was introduced to Pawar Mali.

Twice a week he drives up to our farmhouse in a battered Maruti 800, which seems to reach anywhere on its own accord - for Pawar kaka does not seem to have the expertise in driving as he has in gardening. So when they see his car in the distance, all our farm workers either try to climb the barbed wire fence or slip into the nearest gutter - they find these less dangerous than the manic car hurtling towards them.

Pawar kaka, over the past few months, has managed to change my way of looking at flowers, plants and gardens. Much to my children's amusement, I have now started dropping names of plants like they are some international celebrities. Wasn't I proud to show them the young "lollipops", "Laila Majnu", "Mor pankhis", "tuggers", "galantas", "pospi gavath", "mother in law tone" (I have previously heard of it being called mother in law's seat) "agrasur" (sounds like an asura's grandfather doesn't it ? ), "Ficuss" and "Cicuss" (these last two sound like brothers from the Asterix comics) that looked so good in our newly laid out garden. It was only after I overheard them snigger behind my back, that I realized how funny I must have sounded.

Pawar kaka has his own ideas of what will look best in which place. For example, I had told him to plant pink and white bouganvillae alternately on the fence. I came back from a weekend holiday to find one pink making its presence felt after every four white plants. When reminded of the original requirement, Pawar was distressed to note that my artistic tendencies did not match with his.

"Te kaay ho Myaadam. Tyacha show vegalaach ahey " - meaning that his design had a beauty of its own kind.

"THE PAWARFUL GARDEN" -By Ann Suman Sirur

He has his team of technical experts who are equally enthusiastic and friendly - Hanumantha, Baijabai, and Rukmini bai. These simple souls are flummoxed by my refusal to plant mango, guava and chickoo trees in such a big garden. They see no charm in filling it up with useless palms, bamboos, creepers and grass. They have no doubts about my ignorance of the subject, when they explain to me why stones have to be placed like soldiers around every bed to prevent the water from running out. And I have to wrack my brains to come out with a convincing explanation to tell them that there could be alternative solutions. They also wonder why I cannot appreciate the variously shaped bushes that resemble umbrellas, pagodas, bird's nests and people's hairdos. It's an insult to their creativity I suppose. Only a mad woman would want to plant stuff and let it run riot to resemble a forest.

In a couple of months Pawar kaka and his team will finish their task of planting. I have a strong suspicion they will not want to add my garden to their portfolio or bring prospective customers to view this particular creation - though they love to bring along their relatives and friends to show off the house that they describe as "Ekdam Gaanvche Type Ghar".

Mr. Zaveri Poonawalla (Brother of Dr. Cyrus Poonawalla) is a well-known industrialist in Pune. He had this driver named Ganga Datt with him for the last 30 years on his Limousine.

Ganga Datt passed away recently and at that time Mr. Poonawalla was in Mumbai for some important work. As soon as he heard the news, he cancelled all his meetings, & requested the driver's family to wait him for the cremation and came back to Pune immediately by a helicopter.

On reaching Pune, he asked the Limousine to be decorated with flowers, as he wished Ganga Datt should be taken in the same car which he himself had driven since the beginning.

When Ganga Datt's family agreed to his wishes, he himself drove Ganga Datt from his home up to the ghat on his last journey.

When asked about it, Mr. Poonawalla replied that Ganga Datt had served him day and night, and he could at least do this being eternally grateful to him._

He further added that Ganga Datt rose up from poverty and educated both his children very well. His daughter is a Chartered accountant and that is so commendable._

His comment in the end, is the essence of a successful life in all aspects: *Everybody earns money which is nothing unusual in that, but we should always be grateful to those people who contribute to our success. This is the belief, we have been brought up with, which made me do, what I did.*

An inspiring example of humanity... 🙏🙏

(Based on the philosophy of Prajapita Brahma Kumari Ishwariya Vishwavidyaya)

One of the unhealthiest emotions is our old friend “ANGER”. One can never control – the circumstances, people or situation as they are constantly changing. The only thing we can do is, the way we choose to respond, we can increase our capacity to tolerate and our ability to understand.

Modern day life comes with a whole host of challenges. So, rather than crying on this situation, we should accept these challenges and also instead of spending our time keeping an eye on what others are doing, we can begin to use our energy to plan our own part to the best of our ability.

Through daily practice and application of spiritual principles in our practical life, the experience of our inner peace can become a natural way of being.

To be peaceful is to be powerful.

The outcome is, being angry with someone to prove a point; we can learn to be assertive. Assertion contains respect for oneself, whereas anger shows respect for neither the self nor others.

This is one of the benefits of practising meditation. It helps to create personal space within ourselves, so that we have the chance to look, weigh up the situation and respond accordingly and remaining in a state of self-control.

FUN TIME -I love this analogy!

You are holding a cup of coffee when someone comes along and bumps into you or shakes your arm, making you spill your coffee everywhere.

Why did you spill the coffee? "Because someone bumped into me!!!"

Wrong answer. You spilled the coffee because there was coffee in your cup.

Had there been tea in the cup, you would have spilled tea.

Whatever is inside the cup is what will spill out.

Therefore, when life comes along and shakes you (which WILL happen), whatever is inside you will come out. It's easy to fake it, until you get rattled.

So we must ask ourselves... "what's in my cup?"*

When life gets tough, what spills over?

Joy, gratefulness, peace and humility?

Anger, bitterness, harsh words and reactions?

Life provides the cup, YOU choose how to fill it.

Today let's work towards filling our cups with gratitude, forgiveness, joy, words of affirmation; and kindness, gentleness and love for others.

*(Shared from a friend whose cup is full of goodness and inspiration.)*
